

Call for Papers:
Nordic Centre Conference 2017

Digital Culture and Society - Chinese and Nordic developments DCS 2017 Shanghai, October 19-20, 2017

DCS 2017 will focus on the interdisciplinary study of Social Science and Computer Science, providing a forum for researchers and practitioners from interdisciplinary areas of computer science, statistics and Social Science, to discuss theoretical and application issues in Digital media technologies on Culture and Society, to exchange ideas, share knowledge and promote future cooperation. This year's conference will mainly welcome researchers from China and Nordic countries, but researchers from other countries are welcome too. Researchers are encouraged to submit original research contributions in all major areas, which include, but not limited to:

- Digital media data analysis
- Web and social media mining
- Recommendation in social media
- Social Network and Community structure analysis
- Sentiment analysis in social media
- Hot topic tracking in social media
- Visualization of digital media data for culture and society
- Social media and citizenship
- New forms of consumption
- Internet and everyday life
- Internet governance
- Trust model in social media
- Privacy concerns and models for social media
- Digital ecosystems that facilitate the capture of big social data
- Online communication and politics

Deadline for initial paper submissions: May 5, 2017. Decisions on accepted papers by June 20. Deadline for “camera-ready” papers: August 15.

Read more and submit your paper here